

In Brief: Karolinska scientists convicted of fraud

June 1 2006

Two scientists at Stockholm's Karolinska Institute have been found guilty of research fraud.

A committee investigating the case returned its finding Wednesday after reviewing research into alternative pain treatments submitted by the accused professor and doctoral student, The Local reported.

Investigators said they found flaws in the material when compared with standard practices.

The Swedish Research Council conducted the multi-year review for the institute, which now must determine how to deal with the unidentified researchers.

Copyright 2006 by United Press International

Citation: In Brief: Karolinska scientists convicted of fraud (2006, June 1) retrieved 17 April 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2006-06-karolinska-scientists-convicted-fraud.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--