

Some Mrs. Baird's brand buns are recalled

April 2 2008

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration announced the recall of Mrs. Baird's brand four-inch buns because of a labeling error.

The FDA said Mrs. Baird's Bakeries of Fort Worth, Texas, voluntarily recalled the buns because they contain milk that is not listed on the package label, posing a health risk for people allergic to milk products.

The buns were sold at Costco stores in North Texas in a package containing 24 buns and to restaurant and institutional customers in Texas and Oklahoma in 12 count packages. The package label has a "best by" date of April 8.

Consumers can return the product to the place of purchase for a full refund or exchange. Consumers with questions can contact the company at 877-224-7374.
