

Insurers may prove choosy with overhaul exchanges

January 17 2013, by Tom Murphy

UnitedHealth CEO Stephen Hemsley is warning analysts not to assume that the insurer will participate widely in a key health care overhaul coverage expansion that unfolds later this year.

State-based exchanges will debut this fall and allow people to sign up for coverage online, with some using income-based tax credits to help pay the bill. Hemsley says UnitedHealth may participate in as few as 10 exchanges when as many as 100 might be set up.

He says whether the insurer participates will depend on if the exchanges are fair and provide a reasonable financial return.

Analysts say it's too early to determine whether some exchanges will wind up thin on competition. Competition on exchanges is intended to keep prices in check.

UnitedHealth is the nation's largest health insurer.

Copyright 2013 The Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

Citation: Insurers may prove choosy with overhaul exchanges (2013, January 17) retrieved 30 April 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2013-01-choosy-overhaul-exchanges.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.