

GOP-led House again targets Obama health care law

January 10 2014, by Donna Cassata

House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi of Calif. meets with reporters on Capitol Hill in Washington, Thursday, Jan. 9, 2014. The top Democrat in the Republican-controlled House focused on the Affordable Care Act and the fight to pass immigration reform. (AP Photo/J. Scott Applewhite)

President Barack Obama's health care law is back in Republican crosshairs as the GOP-led House weighs a bill that would impose new requirements on the administration.

Despite White House opposition, the House was expected to approve the measure Friday as emboldened Republicans kick off an election-year challenge to the troubled 4-year-old law. The GOP's focus on "Obamacare" reflects the party's belief that the well-known problems with the law will pay political dividends in November's midterm contests.

The HealthCare.com enrollment website got off to a calamitous start on Oct. 1, followed quickly by widespread reports of canceled policies and higher premiums.

The House bill would require the administration to notify an individual within two business days of any security breach involving personal data provided to the government during health care enrollment.

© 2014 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: GOP-led House again targets Obama health care law (2014, January 10) retrieved 11 May 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2014-01-gop-led-house-obama-health-law.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
