

Dutch court confirms 12-year-old can refuse chemotherapy

July 11 2017

An appeals judge in the Netherlands has confirmed that a 12-year-old boy does not have to undergo chemotherapy if he does not want it.

Tuesday's ruling came after the boy's father appealed to a court to order the treatment. The mother of the boy supported her son in his opposition to the chemotherapy.

Aad van de Beek, a court spokesman in Amsterdam, said the appeals court found that the boy, identified only as David, had carefully considered the situation and had the ability to make a sound decision.

Chemotherapy was part of treatment for David following the successful surgical removal last year of a brain tumor.

© 2017 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Dutch court confirms 12-year-old can refuse chemotherapy (2017, July 11) retrieved 24 April 2024 from

<https://medicalxpress.com/news/2017-07-dutch-court-year-old-chemotherapy.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--