

Where are HIV diagnoses made?

May 11 2018

---

Credit: CC0 Public Domain

In the first study to comprehensively describe where people are diagnosed with HIV in England, Wales, and Northern Ireland, investigators found that an increasing proportion of HIV diagnoses are being made outside of sexual health clinics, which is in line with evolving HIV testing guidelines.

The HIV Medicine study revealed that late diagnosis remains high, however, indicating the need for further expansion of testing.

"This shift must be considered in the context of the updates to national HIV testing guidance advocating for expanded testing and the availability of new technologies for HIV testing across clinical and community settings," the authors wrote.

More information: S Croxford et al, Where do we diagnose HIV infection? Monitoring new diagnoses made in nontraditional settings in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, HIV Medicine (2018). DOI: 10.1111/hiv.12627

Provided by Wiley

Citation: Where are HIV diagnoses made? (2018, May 11) retrieved 24 April 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2018-05-hiv.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.