

Adenovirus cases rise to 12 at southern New Jersey facility

November 23 2018

Health officials say they've identified two new cases of children infected with adenovirus at a New Jersey pediatric health care facility.

The Voorhees Pediatric Facility near Philadelphia tells WPVI-TV Friday that brings the total number of infected patients to 12. Facility officials say there have been no related deaths and none of the patients are in critical condition.

At least 10 people died earlier this year after an outbreak of a different strain of adenovirus at Wanaque Center for Nursing and Rehabilitation in New Jersey in Haskell, about 100 miles(161 kilometers) away. There have been 28 cases associated with the respiratory virus at the center, where the affected children had severely compromised immune systems. One death was a young adult.

Officials have said there is no wider public health concern.

© 2018 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Adenovirus cases rise to 12 at southern New Jersey facility (2018, November 23) retrieved 11 July 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2018-11-adenovirus-cases-southern-jersey-facility.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--