

Don't expect to puff away at next year's Tokyo Olympics

February 28 2019, by Stephen Wade

In this April 7, 2017, file photo, people gather at a smoking area in Tokyo. Tokyo is a smokers' heaven. Despite tougher laws enacted last year, smokers can still light up in small restaurants and bars. Tobacco advertising is allowed on television, cigarette packages don't contain graphic health warnings, and tobacco is cheap compared to prices in other world cities. Tokyo organizers on Thursday, Feb. 28, 2019, announced a stringent ban on all tobacco products and vaping devices. Smoking will be banned at any indoor or outdoor Olympic or Paralympic venue—including perimeter areas being run Tokyo 2020. (AP Photo/Koji Sasahara, File)

Tokyo Olympic organizers have announced a stringent ban on all tobacco products and vaping devices for next year's games. Smoking will be banned at any indoor or outdoor Olympic or Paralympic venue, including perimeter areas being run by the Tokyo Games.

Organizers say the prohibition is tougher than regulations for the last two Summer Olympics in London and Rio de Janeiro.

In a statement on Thursday organizers said "Tokyo 2020 aims to leave a legacy of improved health for the country at large."

Tokyo is still a smoker's heaven. Despite tougher national and city laws enacted last year, smokers can light up in some restaurants and bars. Tobacco advertising is allowed on television, cigarette packages don't contain graphic health warnings, and tobacco is cheap compared to other major cities.

In this Aug. 8, 2017, file photo, people gather at the smoking area in Tokyo's

Shiodome business district. Tokyo is a smokers' heaven. Despite tougher laws enacted last year, smokers can still light up in small restaurants and bars. Tobacco advertising is allowed on television, cigarette packages don't contain graphic health warnings, and tobacco is cheap compared to prices in other world cities. Tokyo organizers on Thursday, Feb. 28, 2019, announced a stringent ban on all tobacco products and vaping devices. Smoking will be banned at any indoor or outdoor Olympic or Paralympic venue—including perimeter areas being run Tokyo 2020. (AP Photo/Shizuo Kambayashi, File)

© 2019 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Don't expect to puff away at next year's Tokyo Olympics (2019, February 28) retrieved 4 May 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2019-02-dont-puff-year-tokyo-olympics.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.