

Three US sailors test positive for virus on aircraft carrier

March 25 2020

Three US sailors from the aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt have been diagnosed with the novel coronavirus, the first cases reported on a US Navy ship currently on deployment, officials said Tuesday.

The three have been evacuated and all those they had come into contact with on the vessel, which has more than 5,000 personnel on board, have been quarantined, Acting Navy Secretary Thomas B. Modly told reporters.

The ship was last in port in Vietnam 15 days ago but Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Mike Gilday said it was difficult to connect the cases to a particular port visit.

"We took great precautions when the crew came back from that shore visit, and did enhanced medical screenings of the crew," he said.

Overall, the Navy has 86 coronavirus cases, including 57 active-duty service members, he said.

Last week the amphibious assault ship USS Boxer—currently in port in San Diego according to US media—reported one of its personnel had tested "presumptive positive" for the virus.

© 2020 AFP

Citation: Three US sailors test positive for virus on aircraft carrier (2020, March 25) retrieved 4

May 2024 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2020-03-sailors-positive-virus-aircraft-carrier.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.