The language of loneliness and depression, revealed in social media

October 27 2022, by Marilyn Perkins

Loneliness and depression have large overlaps in language markers, illustrated by words and phrases and top four Facebook topics. All correlations in the table are controlled for age and gender. The collections of words and phrases results are present with a minimum significant level at p 0, protective = correlations with r

Citation: The language of loneliness and depression, revealed in social media (2022, October 27) retrieved 20 June 2024 from https://medicalxpress.com/news/2022-10-language-loneliness-depression-revealed-social.html